Without losing you at the cover, I really thank all you people who have bought this comic.

I'm already soaring releasing this comic with all my heart, but thinking it over now, I didn't think at all that I would get scolded with a weird manga with an old man protagonist.

From here, whether my

A CROW REPULSING SCREECROW!

SCREECROW MK. I

Standard equipped with a super talking gun, it looks on automatically for targets for Speedy bombardment. However, it's weakness is it can't see it's target if it is looking on for a moment since it's body fills apart easily. It's really stupid. Introduced in Chap. 1

SCREECROW MK. II

Improved version of Mk. I, it's a grapping being who isn't able to lose its target since it can shape gas in itself, even though it's getting gas is exposed. Regular option equipment include 30mm machine gun, guided missiles, etc.

Translator Note

Hey there everyone and welcome to my latest and...probably most surprising project yet! I probably know what you're thinking if you're reading this script: wait a minute, this series was by Obata? The Obata of "Hikaru no Go", "Death Note" and "Bakuman" among other series? One of the most popular and known manga artists of today? Well the simple answer to this is...yes. Obata did both write and draw this series when it ran in Jump through the year of 1989 (which makes it 20 years this year) as his very first Jump work after a period working under at least one mangaka master (which we'll be hearing from at the end of the volume...but really isn't as known in this country compared to him) It only lasted in '89 though, since it was out of the magazine by the end of the year...but it's very hard as you know to get somewhere in Jump both then and now. I really won't go into the whole history of Obata right now, but essentially he did have a few other Jump series (one of which I may also be translating if my source helps out) before finally really breaking through with "Hikaru no Go" in '99, close to 10 years since first popping in the magazine (though he did have an anime from an earlier work...)

Now for the next question that you're probably asking yourself: why do I want to do such a strange but slightly significant series? Well there are several reasons actually. One of which is of course is the Obata factor: considering everyone hypes him these days, I sort of wanted to see how he started out, particularly in a series that he himself wrote. Secondly is just the whole concept: I mean...a old man cyborg? It's just so crazy and bizarre a concept that it actually could lead to something memorable! And finally is just the strange cult that the series, as short as it was, seemed to have gained in Japan in the 20 years since it was first released. If you've followed the 40th anniversary of "Weekly Shonen Jump" in '08, there were two "Ji-chan 6" references amidst all of the more famous and memorable (and much longer lasting) Jump series, one of which was by Osamu Akimoto in a "Jump 40th" chapter of KochiKame, another was on one of the "40th anniversary posters" done by one of Obata's former assistants, Yusuke Murata. So with all the infamy, it seemed right to at least introduce this strange little Jump series to an English speaking audience and at least see how it goes...or if it goes.

Translator Note

As for the chapter itself...well, let's just say this somehow it was much more unbelievable and wacky than I really expected, particularly from Obata...and I loved every minute of it! The entire concept of the series makes no sense whatsoever but of the same time makes plenty of sense if you step back: a famed scientist decides to turn himself into a cyborg...just as he could maintain a family form in his old age! Somehow I would expect this sort of strange concept from Sawada...but as ludicrous as it sounded, it was a great idea that was rather original, both then and now. Heck, even the whole concept of him actually making a special tractor the mayor decides to use to dominate his hometown (unknowingly) was a nice little twist playing on the naive of G and allowing for that crazy introductory battle. The Kaizawa family outside Takigawa/G was rather normal and definitely shows off the "realistic" approach that Obata would later refine for his later series...though here they were mostly tsukkomi to the bizarre antics of grandpa. In a way, I sometimes think that the contrast between the real and the strange is similar to the way that Obata defined it in a series like Death Note, where he also had another notable chance of drawing things both realistic (the humanoid characters) and strange (mostly the Shingami but also peculiarities in characters such as L).

As for where this new project fits in...well basically, this is going to be my side project for the time being. After this first chapter, I'll probably start going back and forth between this and my current project on Kinnikuman, just so I can show both a bit of respect and courtesy in case this series (for some strange reason) catches on. I already have a scandalator for it (Amenoi, run by asent) and sort of hope I am able to get all four volumes of this strange little series does just mostly to get it out there and see how it goes...as well as to see if anyone will join the insanity along with me...I do hope you all like this series like I do...besides, it's not everyday you come across a farming cyborg who runs on chicken pox, huh?

page 7: "Yakima" are roasted sweet potatoes

page 18: I had a hard time with this word, but "Fukuteshin" is Japanese for a secondary development alongside a major urban area that sprouts up due to the development of the main area. Though usually seen with suburban developments, this part of the chapter mentioned one in the Tokyo neighborhood of Shinjuku

Translator Note

It's somewhat strange but somehow if this series wasn't a strange gag manga intended for comedy, some of what happened here really wouldn't fly. Consider this: G just helped a desperate family get away from cops, reunite with the husband's father and took a bundle of stolen cash to build a new home for everyone...and all while selling Yakame! Now taking money that may not belong to them is one thing but seeing G just happily defeat the cops...yeah it was funny but in some ways it just felt wrong. Maybe it's just my morality trying to work things out in something being funny but somehow I guess we're just supposed to laugh at it. Outside the main plot (which actually was a bit touching with G's continued assistance regarding the elderly like himself), the series felt like it was going between the pendulum between some really brilliant bits (G at the burger shop, the Makoto Niwano comes) to...aww (let's say we see a lot more of old women than we want to in this series...and this is before "she" reappears) But with the Kobous finally settled down in Tokyo, maybe things will be more normal...yeah right, this is G-chan we're talking about! (and his story will take a more interesting turn next time)

WELL KEN PROBABLY CALLED IT AT THE START! HE KNEW HE WAS GOING TO GO BAD WITH NO ONE PROPER SUPERVISING HIM...AND OF COURSE WITH B-CHAN, HE'S FINALLY DONE IT! (THOUGH SOMEHOW AS YOU'LL SEE, HIS "BAD SIDE", WHICH STICKS AROUND FOR THE REST OF THE SERIES, LOOKS A LOT LIKE YOSHIKI URAMASHI FOR SOME REASON...

AND BEFORE YOU SAY IT, "CYBORG GRANDPA O" RAN AT THE SAME TIME AS TODASHI'S FIRST SERIALISED WORK "TEN DE SHOWARU CUPID"... WHICH IS A FUN SERIES IN ITSELF THAT I OWN ENTIRELY AND THAT ALSO NEEDS TO BE DONE WHETHER BY ME OR SOMEONE ELSE...

BUT IS OBVIOUSLY PRIOR TO YYHD SURE KEN LOOKS NOTHING LIKE AN 11-YEAR OLD ANYMORE BUT I GUESS THAT'S PROBABLY OMATA'S POINT... OR IT'S JUST THE SUNGLASSES.

ASIDE FROM THAT, THE CHAPTER JUST FELT LIKE ONE WEIRD EPISODE OF LOONY TOONS, WITH B PLAYING THE ROLE OF SCREWY SQUIRREL AND SHAREKUBE PLAYING WILE E. COYTE. THERE WERE SOME REALLY FUNNY BITS (B TRYING TO MAKE THE WHOLE CLASS LOBOTOMISE EACH OTHER, THE OBSTACLE COURSE AND OF COURSE THE SCHOOL MACHO),

BUT IT DID FEEL RATHER CARTOONISH EVEN COMPARED TO THE LAST CHAPTER. INTERESTINGLY THIS CHAPTER DOES CONTINUE TO SET UP THE WORLD AND PROGRESS IT SLIGHTLY...AND THE NEXT WILL DO THE SAME WHERE...NAH, WON'T GET AHEAD OF MYSELF.

Translator Note

LET ME JUST START WITH THIS: UNLIKE KEI, I SORT OF THOUGHT AI BECAME DELINQUENT FOR NO REAL REASONS WHATSOEVER.

SO HER DATE WAS RUINED, THE STUDENT BODY PRESIDENT WAS THE NUTTY GRANDSON OF SHABEKUUSE AND HE HAD A WEIRD POINT ON HIS HEAD LIKE GRANDPA. THAT'S NO REAL REASON TO GIVE IT ALL UP LIKE THAT!

BESIDES, SOMEHOW I THOUGHT AI WAS CUTER PRE-DELINQUENCY AND THE CONCEPT OF HAVING ONE GOOD CHILD AND ONE BAD ONE (AKA KEI) EVEN WITH GRANDPA'S PRETTY MUCH BURNING EVERYONE HE MEETS WOULD HAVE SOME BETTER TO ME... BUT I'M NOT WRITING IT.

OVERALL, THIS CHAPTER WAS MUCH STRONGER THAN THE LAST ONE FOR THE MOST PART, WITH THE MADNESS OF G AND SHABEKUUSE TRYING TO STOP THEIR GRANDCHILD FROM TRYING TO TAKE ADVANTAGE OF THE OTHER SOME REALLY FUN STUFF.

BUT SOMEHOW OR ANOTHER THE WHOLE PART NEAR THE END WHERE SHABEKUUSE DECIDES TO KISS THE BRAINWASHED AI FELT A TAD STRANGE CONSIDERING HE WAS ALL AGAINST INUSAKU GOING OUT WITH AI PRIOR... THOUGH IT PROBABLY WAS JUST HIM WANTING TO TAKE ADVANTAGE OF HER FOR HIS OWN LISTS.

(BUT AT LEAST IT LEAD TO THE BRILLIANCE OF...
KILLER CENTURIES)

Translator Note

Let's start with this: at least Sharekoubu didn't show up this time.

I think the chapter needed a break from him and we got it. With that said, Gantetsu is probably the weirdest and in some ways funniest addition to the Kaizous yet, considering that he's not just a cyber dog...but a GLD cyber farming dog more powerful than G-chan but with less time to live! (well dog years is 7 times human years) In some ways, the bully fight seemed more appropriate in standing up with cybernetic combat compared to some of the stuff the previous chapters had (I'm still a bit squeamish after G-chan's "defeating the police" tactic) with "big dog" vs. "cyber dog" leading to a lot of great moments and...that brilliant ending with Gantetsu and G-chan's switcheroo! The only real part of the chapter I sort of think I screwed up in my script was the part with the missile...was Gantetsu trying to outrun it even though he fired it? I know I screwed that part up but other than that...well, we got another new character next time but Sharekoubu's back again. (that weirdo never stays down long)

Translator Note

So here's the lesson of the day folks: what is the opposite of an old man modified cyborg? A young man, not really modified cyborg hunter! Yeah...Z probably isn't the best example of how to fight a cyborg but he has a lot of heart...and obviously a few screws loose for abandoning school for four years just to run around with kitchen utensils. Somehow while he was brought in courtesy of the story, Z/Zetto is probably the bishonen that...well, the series didn't need but in a story with pretty much a bunch of other age groups already covered, at least he supplies diversity. In a way, he's probably the equivalent of someone who probably has never abandoned his childhood dreams even at the age he's at...and somehow I really hope G never turns him into a cyborg. (though he may just wish with his track record) Luckily with most of the cast set up, we can now go further in the interactions...starting next chapter!
